

Along memory lane...

We moved into our present house in Indooroopilly after our wedding in April 1967. Holy Family was our closest church, so that is where we came to Mass. An added incentive was that Barry's brother, Brian Taylor was the assistant priest at the time.

After such a long time, I have many memories of the Parish, so it is hard to pick a favourite.

One of the best was when we regained our Parish and our Saturday night mass after the disastrous experiment when Father Morgan Howe left.

Others include:

- The baptisms of each of our children in the baptistry.
- Sister Zita wielding a hose to extinguish a fire lit by one of the children in the back of the church.
- Father Tom Elich's first mass.
- Father Michael Rego's ordination at Holy Family.
